

☆☆☆☆☆ Revive America ☆☆☆☆☆

It is with great pride in America that I write to you today. For I, John Davis am a soldier -- not in an army fighting a war -- but a citizen fighting for the future of this great nation.

As I reflect on our nation's founders, I am overwhelmed with gratitude because I have many freedoms not afforded to millions in other countries. I'm writing today because I feel our nation is at odds with itself and we must revive America.

I stand before you as a common man, a hard-working person pursuing all things good in this incredible country. I am a husband, father, and grandfather.

I love God and I love America. I'm a man of integrity and a man of vision. I have made mistakes and I've learned from them. I'm dedicated to my family, to my community, and to my country. And I, John Davis, am running for president of the United States of America.

My family has lived in this town for six generations and I can't imagine living anywhere else. It goes without saying that I've seen this community, this country, and the world change through the years.

I simply cannot imagine living in this country, our country, if it continues in the direction our current leadership is taking us.

That, my friends, is why I'm stepping up to the challenge of the presidency of this great nation. I believe I can make a difference by bringing honor, integrity, accountability, common sense, passion, and truth to our nation's leadership. The people's accomplishments of this great nation are to be applauded: setting stunning examples from which other nations across the globe should take note and learn.

So, in spite of recent events, flailing leaders, and the prospects looking rather bleak, one glimpse of the accomplishments in our history grants hope for the future.

The time has come when we must act. I need people with passion to change this country for the better, the passion to stand up for what's right, the passion to change the future for our children, our grandchildren, and our friends.

In the Declaration of Independence, the insightful writers understood what it took to create a country, and declared that people are "endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable rights, that among these are life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness."

Therefore, our government must secure these rights by balancing the power of the government so it is helpful in protecting people and establishing peace, but doesn't interfere with their "pursuit of happiness"; by abolishing our nation's debt; and by improving our border security and immigration policies.

I am an advocate for liberty and justice while supporting the healthy system of checks and balances set forth by our Constitution in this land where freedom of worship is a cornerstone.

The danger to America is not based on any one leader or the shifting of power from one popular party to another. The danger is in the people giving up on their country and leaving their future to others, and giving up surrendering their common sense and good judgment because they think their voices can't be heard.

Feeling marginalized and unable to participate in the democratic process is detrimental to America's success.

Our country has survived many faulty leaders, but we cannot continue to go to the voting booth and check the box for the lesser of the two evils.

We must hold our government and our leaders to a higher standard. We need to support the election of the best of the best to represent us.

The current leadership of our country is making every attempt to diminish America's greatness and our freedom. Government spending is out of control, with no fiscal accountability and salaries twice that of the private sector. Our judges are legislating from the bench.

Honor and integrity in our leadership is waning or non-existent. Family and Christian values are persecuted rather than preserved.

The freedom to make an honest buck is disappearing due to huge regulations and fees on businesses. Our borders are not being protected.

Our own President is skirting the Constitution and pushing bills through without regard for some of our elected officials, going against the wishes of the majority of the American people.

Some might think I'm crazy for even considering the prospect of giving my life and time to pursuing the presidency.

I don't look like a president, I don't talk like a president, and I don't act like a president, but I do have what it takes to be a president. I am practical, focused, and passionate about solving the problems of this country.

I'm a loyal gentleman of integrity who stands for truth and common sense. I will serve my country and its people with integrity and I will do what I say I will do, even when no one is looking.

The old saying, "evil abounds when good men do nothing" is truer today than it ever has been. Running for president requires not just one passionate individual willing to step up and do something good. It requires many honorable men and women who are willing to work beside me toward this goal.

Whatever talents you have can be used to serve your country. The time has come when we must act. We need people with passion to change this country for the better, the passion to stand up for what's right, the passion to change the future for our children, our grandchildren, and our friends.

I challenge you to fight for the preservation of America

As a citizen and a patriot, I challenge you to fight for the preservation of America. We need leaders who govern not for the benefit of the largest corporation or campaign supporter, but for the good of all the people of this great nation.

The writers of our Constitution indicated we would continue to "establish Justice, insure domestic Tranquility, provide for the common defense, promote the general Welfare, and secure the Blessings of Liberty to ourselves and our Posterity..."

Our government should not be for sale, sold to the highest bidder or the largest lobbying firm.

Our government should be by the people and for the people. It seems that many elected officials have forgotten whom they are representing once they get to Washington. Americans need to rise up and say, "No more!"

Join me, John Davis, in this effort to revive America. I believe we can make the United States of America the unified country governed by its people that it was intended to be.

Guided by systems of accountability and service established by our Constitution, as your leader, I will guide with honor, integrity and common sense.

I will encourage my countrymen and women to remain loyal to the most incredible nation on Earth as we return to the ever-important notion of trusting God with all things and remaining "One nation under God."
